Quotations for Life and Business Success

There are those who believe something and therefore will tolerate nothing and on the other hand those who tolerate everything because they believe in nothing.

Robert Browning

Take a minute to digest this. Browning makes a very valid point.

You reach a point in your life, when you know without question and you believe in your heart of hearts you know what's really possible for you. There are certain things you will not tolerate in your life anymore.

There are certain relationships you won't tolerate. You won't tolerate them because you know they're impeding your progress. You know they're creating a certain amount of paralysis on your path to becoming successful.

Here's a question for you: What are the top five things you tolerate right now in your life or in your business that you wish you didn't?

Your list should contain things you're tolerating by choice; things that are optional and not things you have to tolerate. What are your top five things? Think about that for a moment.

Now, here's a follow-up question: How has tolerating these things impacted your life or your business?

What's the direct impact on you? Sometime you tolerate things you know are irritating and you just think it's something you should do. Why? Because you've never taken the time to really analyze what tolerating these things can cost you.

If you can understand what it's costing you, it will start a certain shift in you, in your thinking, that will make you want to change.

Now focus on this question for a moment: Going forward, what would be the impact on your life and in your business if you continue to tolerate all these things?

Think about this intellectually; really associate what this will cost you if you continue to let things go on, if you continue to tolerate the things you shouldn't.

Once you have compiled your list and given this some thought, focus on eliminating these tolerances. What specific actions can you take to help you remove the things that you no longer need to tolerate?

Celebrating Successes

The following quotes are inspiring, insightful and can produce actionable things to move you in a positive direction.

One of my mentors is Mike Murdock and this is one of my favorite quotes from him.

Desire is to want something but passion is the refusal to live without it.

I look at the proof of passion as being your persistent pursuit of what it is you want and desire.

OTHERS KNOW BEST

Here are some other really great quotes along with some quick ideas of actions you can take based on these quotes.

“The indispensable first step to getting the things you want out of life is this, decide what you want.”

Ben Stein

This quote by Ben Stein poses this question...Have you really decided what you want?

If not, go back and create your very own hot list or dream list. These should be the things that you ultimately want. Ask yourself, what do you want five years from now? Three years from now? One year from now? By the end of this year? What do you want by the end of today?

Be clear on what you're passionate about because passion is the refusal to live without something.

Once you determine what you refuse to live without, this will show you the thing that you're no longer going to tolerate. You want to celebrate, not tolerate.

This quote makes you stop and ask: How often do you take the time to reflect on your life?

You can compare your life to billboards on the highway. You don't really pay attention to them, they just flash past you. You might have the occasional one that catches your eye, but for the most part you aren't paying them much attention.

“Life is not measured by the number of breaths we take, but by the moments that take our breath away.”

Many of you go through your lives like this. You have all these amazing experiences, good and bad, but never really take them in, take the time to recording them, really reflect on them or see what they ultimately mean.

Sometimes, it can be very hard to get to a place of celebration and gratitude because the tendency is to focus on what's missing and what's lacking.

I'm asking you to take the time to appreciate what you do have. Appreciate the experiences you have. Write some of these things down so you can read them again and realize that some of those moments just might be the ones to celebrate.

“We are what we believe we are.”

-- Benjamin Cardoza.

This is a very simple, but extremely powerful and true statement. Taking this quotation into context, here's an exercise called sentence stubs.

What are sentence stubs?

Sentence stubs are certain things you use to start sentences and then you allow yourself to fill in the rest with your emotions and your mind.

Sentence stubs are great for flushing the negative things out and getting to the positive things in your life. Once you complete this exercise you will know exactly where you are.

Here are some examples of sentence stubs:

- I am not willing to...and then fill in the blanks.

This sentence stub can help you find out real values. Here are some examples: I am not willing to cheat in business or I am not willing to work more than an hour a day to build my business.

OTHERS KNOW BEST

Here are a few more sentence stubs. When completing this exercise don't try to control or filter your answers, just let them come out naturally and honestly.

You can come up with as many sentence stubs as you need to really help you to uncover your purpose, uncover your values, your mission and your vision in life.

- I get angry when...
- I hold myself back...
- I am most afraid of...
- I don't trust...
- I am most grateful for...
- I love...
- I appreciate...
- I laugh when...
- I have the best time when...
- I am living for...
- I exist because...

The one thing not to do is let yourself get in the way. By this I mean, there are times when ideas come up, but then are filtered by using the word 'but'.

When you're coming up with ideas, it's not the time to start evaluating them, criticizing, critiquing or analyzing them. This is your creation phase so just let the ideas flow; you can critique them at a later stage.

More Quotes For Thought

“Forgiveness does not change the past, but it does enlarge the future.”

Ask yourself if there's anyone who you must forgive in your life, in your past, in your present?

What negative feelings do you have that you need to just release and let go? These negative feelings are holding you back and they are weights holding you down. You need to let go of if you are to succeed.

William Faulkner stated:

“The man or woman who removes a mountain begins by carrying away small stones.”

“The best way to have a good idea is to have a lot of ideas.”

--Linus Pauling

How do you have lot of ideas?

This is relatively simple, all you need to do is relax and focus on your situation.

You can focus on your goal, your challenge or your problems. Then just ask the question: How might I get or how might I do X, Y and Z?

OTHERS KNOW BEST

You can relate this to your business. What small things can you do today, that will build a big future tomorrow. Every little thing helps and even the small things you do in your business have a big impact.

Neale Donald Walsh once said

“Life begins at the end of your comfort zone.”

In relation to your business this quote can mean that when you move past your comfort zone and take a chance, success can be yours.

Another quote worth noting from an unknown source is

“If you don't feel grateful for what you have, what makes you think you'll be happy with more?”

If you're not grateful for the small business success you achieve what makes you think you'll be happy with more success. Celebrate and appreciate every single success you make in your business even if it seems very small at the time.

The last quote I have for you is from Rosemary Konner Steinbaum. She stated

“You are the product of your own brainstorm.”

Hopefully some of these quotes will be meaningful for you. They provide you with some great steps and ideas that you can use to pursue your passion and what you refuse to live without.
